It's time to apply. What do I need to prepare to help me fill out my application?

You might be surprised to know that many scholarship applications ask for similar if not identical information. Gather the information you need now in one place. This will help you save time and present your best work when applying for multiple scholarship opportunities with multiple organizations.

Create your scholarship resume: Gather all the information related to your extra-curricular activities, volunteer activities, employment, and awards/achievements. Applications will ask for dates of involvement, roles/positions, leadership roles, and other notable information.

Ask for a reference letter: Approach someone about writing a letter of reference for you. Don't wait until the application deadline! Giving more time will help them write a better letter. Ask them to comment on your strengths, character, traits that are unique to you, and things that make you stand out. Ultimately, why do they think you deserve a scholarship? It's helpful to provide them a list of your activities and achievements. You can ask a variety of mentors in your life like a teacher, coach, counselor, pastor, or employer. The best references are people who know you well and have watched you grow in some way.

Start writing your Personal Narrative: Many applications will ask about your hopes for the future. Start thinking about the following questions: What are your educational goals and the steps that you will take to achieve those goals? What are your career goals and the steps you will take to achieve them? Why did you choose these goals? Write a first draft and have someone proofread it for error and input.

Fill out the FAFSA: Many scholarships are based on financial need. Even if you think you won't qualify, fill it out! Need is often influenced by the size of an applicant pool and specific scholarship criteria. You never really know if you qualify until you apply. Apply for a FAFSA Submission Report ASAP.

Many scholarship applications require that students submit activity and award information. It is helpful to gather all this information together before filling out an application. This allows you time to think through all the details of your activities, allowing for the best presentation of material. Plus, it saves time when you are ready to fill out applications.

Items on a scholarship resume (If you are a high school student, focus on high school activities. If you are a college student, focus on your college experience.)

Volunteer Activities

This can be a BIG deal! Many organizations giving scholarships do so because they care about the community. They value students who also give back through volunteerism. Think of what you have already done. You might be surprised by how much you have volunteered through classes, churches, family activities, and other organizations.

- Did you do it with a group or on you own?
- Leadership and other notable information about the work
- Example: Volunteered with the Food Bank, Jr. Year of High School, once per month, with Boy Scouts, Earned Badge

Extra-Curricular Activities

- Name of activity
- Role/Position
- When did you participate? How long have you participated?
- Leadership roles
- Other notable information
- Example: Band, Trumpet, Fr. – Sr. Year, Section Leader, Served on Advisory Council to Director and made All-State

Work Experience

- Name of employer
- Type of work
- Dates of employment
- Number of hours per week
- Leadership roles and/or other notable information
- Example: Fareway, Bagger, 2024-current, 15 hrs. per week, Employee of the month in 2025

Awards/Achievements

- Name of award
- When it was awarded
- Significance
- Other notable information
- Example: Honor Roll, Jr. and Sr. Year, High GPA
